

Processing Technology of the Table Olive*

Suzanne Colmagro, Graham Collins, and Margaret Sedgley
Department of Horticulture, Viticulture and Oenology, Waite Campus,
The University of Adelaide, Glen Osmond, South Australia, 5064,
Australia

- I. INTRODUCTION
- II. CLASSIFICATION OF PROCESSED PRODUCTS
 - A. Fruit Color
 - B. Processing Method
 - C. Processing Style
 - D. Combined Classifications
- III. WORLD PRODUCTION
- IV. HARVESTING
- V. PROCESSING
 - A. Spanish Style Green Olives
 - 1. Lye Treatment
 - 2. Washing
 - 3. Brining
 - 4. Fermentation
 - 5. Packaging
 - 6. Turning Color Olives
 - 7. Castelvetrano Style Olives

*Thanks to Graham Jones, Michelle Wirthensohn, Genet Teshome Mekuria, Steve Choimes, Bob Barrett, Richard Gawel, Andrew Yap, Hylton McLean, Rosa Matto, Maggie Beer, Zannie Flanagan, Anne Oliver, Jim Smythe, Andrea Hristofis, Susan Sweeney, Michael Burr, Maroudis Olives, Omega Foods, and The McLaren Vale Olive Groves Pty. Ltd. for assistance and advice on production and sensory evaluation of table olives. Research conducted by M. Sedgley's group was supported by the Horticultural Research and Development Corporation, the Rural Industries Research and Development Corporation, the Australian Research Council, Oltech Pty. Ltd., BOS&S Pty. Ltd, The Australian Olive Association, Olives South Australia and Kangaringa Proprietors Pty. Ltd.

Horticultural Reviews, Volume 25, Edited by Jules Janick
ISBN 0-471-34933-X © 2001 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

- B. Siciliano Style Green Olives
 1. Fruit Preparation
 2. Washing and Brining
 3. Fermentation
 4. Turning Color Olives
- C. Greek Style Naturally Ripe Black Olives
 1. Fruit Preparation
 2. Washing and Brining
 3. Fermentation
 4. Kalamata Style Olives
 5. Dehydrated Black Olives in Dry Salt
 6. Oven Dried Olives
- D. Californian Style Black Olives
 1. Fruit Preparation
 2. Lye Treatment
 3. Washing
 4. Darkening
 5. Packaging
- VI. IMPORTANT CHARACTERISTICS OF TABLE OLIVES
- VII. DEFECTS
 - A. Flesh Defects
 1. Gas Pocket Formation
 2. Softening
 3. Darkening
 4. Shrivelling
 - B. Skin Defects
 1. Blistering
 2. External Blemish
 3. Green Stains
 4. Yeast Spots
 5. Sloughing
 - C. Unpleasant Odors and Brine Appearance
 1. Putrid and Butyric Fermentations and Zapateria
 2. Galazoma or Cyanosis
 3. Cloudy Brine
- VIII. MONITORING AND CONTROL
- IX. EVALUATION OF TABLE OLIVES
 - A. Sensory Evaluation
 - B. Chemical Evaluation
- X. FUTURE DIRECTIONS
- LITERATURE CITED

I. INTRODUCTION

The olive tree, Olea europaea L, produces a fruit that must be processed, and while 90% of the olive crop worldwide is pressed for olive oil production, table olives are an important commodity traded internationally. Table olives are a fermented product, and for most of their history this